Art. 168 Rights of persons concerned

¹ The investigation committee shall identify the persons whose interests are directly affected by the investigation and inform these persons without delay about the investigation. They shall be accorded the right conferred by Article 167 paragraph 1, to the extent that they are affected.

² The investigation committee may restrict or revoke the rights of the person concerned to be present at hearings and to inspect files if this is required in the interests of the ongoing investigation or for the protection of third parties. In such cases, the committee shall inform the person concerned, either verbally or in writing, of the essential content of statements made or documents and give the person the opportunity to express his or her views thereon and to indicate further evidence.

³ Evidence that is not made known to a person concerned may not be used against that person.

⁴ The investigation committee may permit a person concerned, at their request, to be accompanied by a lawyer for the entire proceedings or at individual meetings, if this is required for the protection of the lawful interests of the person concerned. The lawyer may only request further evidence and ask additional questions.

⁶ Their verbal or written opinions must be summarised in the report.

Art. 169 Obligation of secrecy

¹ Anyone who participates in meetings and interviews is subject to the obligation of secrecy until the report to the Federal Assembly is published. Persons questioned are in particular not permitted to report to their superiors on the questioning or on requests for documents.

² After the submission of the report, the general provisions on the confidentiality of committee meetings apply.

³ The president and the vice-president of the investigation committee, or if they are no longer members of the Council, the president and the vice-president of the Control Delegation shall decide on applications to inspect files during the protective period that applies in terms of Articles 9–12 of the Archiving Act of 26 June 1998¹²⁵.

Art. 170 Perjury by witnesses and expert witnesses

¹ Anyone who appears as a witness in proceedings before the investigation committee and gives false evidence or appears as an expert witness and provides a false report or a false expert opinion shall be liable to the penalties provided under Article 307 of the Swiss Criminal Code¹²⁶.

² Anyone who refuses without lawful reason to make a statement or to hand over documents shall be liable to the penalties provided under Article 292 of the Swiss Criminal Code.

³ Offences, including breach of the obligation of secrecy in terms of Article 169 paragraph 1, are subject to federal jurisdiction.

Art. 171 Effect on other proceedings and investigations

¹ If the Federal Assembly has decided to appoint an investigation committee, no other committee is permitted to conduct further investigations into the events that are the subject of the mandate of the investigation committee.

² The appointment of an investigation committee shall not prevent the conduct of civil or administrative court proceedings or of preliminary investigations and court proceedings under criminal law.

³ Disciplinary¹²⁷ or administrative inquiries at federal level that relate to matters or persons that are or have been the subject of a parliamentary investigation may only be initiated with the authorisation of the investigation committee. Ongoing proceedings must be suspended until the investigation committee authorises their continuation.
